John Maher Named To “WILLIAMSON 25”

Spring Hill home builder honored by Nashville Business Journal

SPRING HILL, TENN. – John Maher, President of John Maher Builders, Inc., has been named by the Nashville Business Journal to the “Williamson 25,” an honor recognizing the 25 individuals who most influence business in Williamson County, Tenn. Maher and the other “Williamson 25” will be honored at a dinner Oct. 6 at the Marriott Cool Springs.

As a part of a special edition of the Oct. 7, 2005 Nashville Business Journal the newspaper sought nominations from scores of business and civic leaders for people they believed were the most influential to business and the economy of Williamson County, one of the Southeast’s fastest growing and economically dynamic business markets. “I am humbled by this prestigious honor,” Maher said. “This recognition is from my peers and for them to count me among the most influential business leaders in the county is extremely flattering.”

Maheer, an Ohio native who stayed in middle Tennessee after attending college and playing football at Middle Tennessee State University in the 1970s, has lived in Williamson County for more than 25 years. After a ten year teaching and coaching career Maheer began building homes in the mid 1980s. With building concentrated mostly in the Spring Hill community his company has seen steady growth from year to year. To date John Maheer Builders has built more than 1,200 homes and has plans to triple that amount in the next few years. The company is consistently ranked among the fastest growing and most successful home builders in the Nashville area. “Williamson County is a wonderful place to live and develop a business. We’ve been very fortunate to be able to grow and expand our business as the county has grown and expanded,” Maheer said. “But a great deal of our success is also attributed to our valued and dedicated employees, sub-contractors and vendors, many of whom have been with us throughout the years.”
